FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 6

AS EUROPE SEES IT

The kept press of Germany and Italy see in the landslide for Roosevelt a willingness on the part of the people of the United States to surrender the liberties of self-government for the suggested security of a dictatorship. But M.
Thelma French foreign news hails the outcome as "A triumph for democratic tendencies."

Europe is divided on the question of popular government versus arbitrary authority. Proponents of either side are equally zealous. The return what they want to see. The advocates of "yes men" of bonum hope the result means the establishment of a Hitler or Mussolini at Washington. Those who believe in popular rule think it vindicates the workability and permanence of democracy.

The fact, observable at closer range and in the clearer atmosphere of this continent, is that the people of the United States did not vote on a political theory. They refused to do that, though Mr. Landon invited them to do so. They voted for themselves, as individuals, not as units in a corporate entity. What they did to Mr. Landon they will do to Mr. Roosevelt, success in the Democratic candidature four years hence, should there be any attempt in the meantime to reduce them to the status of present day German or Italian "citizenship."

ACTION GETS VOTES
Nobody who is gifted with reason will imagine that all who vote for Mr. Roosevelt on Tuesday approve all the Roosevelt methods in detail. Coding and regimentation are not believed of the people of the United States, any more than by the people of Canada. The kind of thing may suit the tastes of peoples on the continent of Europe, who never made a mistake of the parliamentary system of government; in these two countries it will be tolerated only where and to the extent that is necessary.

The results show again the political advantage of a positive vote. Mr. Roosevelt was not Mr. Roosevelt was trying to go somewhere; Mr.
Landon trying to prevent him. The voters may have been misled by the press, but they were former, but he told them in simple language what he was trying to do. Mr. Landon never was able to say exactly what he was trying to do, other than a return to the traditional party of trade exclusion. And the electors remembered they had in 1923—along with bank failures and a famine which broke broken here and there by flashes of revolutionary threats.

Canada's Dominion and provincial Governments should make note of the outcome, in its bearing on the relative merits of positive and negative policies. "These Governments" were elected to do things, not simply to mark time and maintain traditions. Action is the price of political survival.

PROSPERITY IS HOME-MADE Elections are not won by statistics. The only kind of prosperity that counts on voting day is the kind "you can feel in your pockets." Mr. Landon quoted figures in a vain effort to charm Hon. R. B. Bennett. But they didn't charm the electors. Statistical tables hold no place against the direct tables of fact which honest voters knowers and home-makers are making up their minds here to vote. Though one speak with the gears of Mellon and of accountants he is sounding brass and air, and the result will be has constructive proposals to keep the family pot boiling.

Talk about balancing a national or provincial budget falls upon deaf ears unless the hearer is told how he can balance the family budget.
The inevitable intervals of a nation take second place to the known needs of wife and children.
Economic patriotism begins at home. No nation of prosperous homes ever went broke, or even near. The foundation of national stability is home stability.

Canada's Governments and legislatures will have to start to rebuild their prosperity by rebuilding the prosperity of the average man.
There isn't any other place to start with any hope of success. All other starting places have been tried, and the inevitable result has been collapse.

Give every man a job and budgets—and elections will be care of themselves.

"WHETHER THERE BE PROPHETIES"
Mr. Landon and the Republican party were not the only casualties in the landslide. There were others, and they faced even worse.

There were five candidates for the presidency, and more than thirty political organizations and mushroom groups supporting them.
Three of the five men were sunk without a trace, and not mentioned in the despatches.
Dr. Townsend, as publicist, miracle-workers and king-makers are in eclipse.

The people of the United States do not take to "third" parties any more than do the people of Canada. Occasionally one of these wing sectional popularity and gain local power, as the United Farmers in Ontario and Alberta, the Populists in Kansas and the Social Creditists in this province. But these successes have always been temporary and local, and have ended with the passing of the conditions which gave them birth.

One other characteristic third parties have in common. They are always just on the eve of kicking both the major parties into oblivion, sweeping the country, and bringing in the millennium. The Patrons of Industry were going mad in Canada, and the United Farmers were Free Silverites were sure it was all over but the balfing in the United States. So down to the present day, when Lenseke professed the U.S. electors with the new triumph of Miller of communism, and self-appointed prophets foretold a Social Credit victory at the federal polls in Canada, and the Social Creditists in History repeats.

The prizes awarded at the recent exhibition amount to $43, nearly 100 more than last year.
J. Brown and J. Sinclair went out Friday to hunt geese at the lakes on the Athabasca trail near the Sturgeon. Large flocks were shot over at the lakes in their flight south and feed in the neighboring wheat fields.

A rumor was current in town this week that the government had ordered a clear majority of

The Passing Show

By J. C. COWPER

Judges are called up to decide strange issues, but few of the learned occupants of the bench have stronger backs than Mr. Justice Middleton of the Ontario Supreme Court, who today must decide the winner of Toronto's "Stork Derby."

Friend wives and their nudes are awaiting the judge's decision, but if they know of a prolific breeding entities them to the Prix de Stork. There must be most heart-burning among those who are waiting for their turn during the past ten years, but their efforts unrewarded on earth.

If it is of any help, Mr. Justice Middleton has the benefit of having been told that Charles Vance Miller in person. During the time that Justice Middleton was E. Middleton, K.C., was appearing at the Ontario bar, Mr. Miller was also in active practice as counsel.

People who never knew Charles Miller and his longish name are prone to believe that he devoted the baby Marston for the purpose of settling mother against mother. In a copyrighted story in the Toronto Globe a news-writer who obviously did not know Charles Miller in the flesh, paints him as malevolent Scrooge, "a man of no moral compulsion" who revelled drawing up legal bills, and who was seeking revenge for a supposed disappointment in an early love affair.

I reported the lawcases for many years for the Toronto Globe and can assure you that Mr. Miller's practice was in company matters, not domestic disputes. There was no divorce law in Ontario during Mr. Miller's years of practice.

He probably knew how to say "No" when asked to contribute to charities that unduly embellished religious dogmas, but he was no embittered Scrooge or misanthrope. He gave plenty to charity in his own way.

Here's a little story told by G. Clayton Anderson, old Toronto resident and now in Toronto, who was a main street one day with Mr. two men stopped to hear a street corner preacher, who was holding forth under the happening of a cold, and what Mr. Miller was impressed with what the man said, but felt painful to hear the way he was abusing his throat.

After the man finished his address, Miller asked about the cold, and what Mr. Miller was making at open air preaching. The man said he was making "about $20 a day."

Miller then took him to a drugstore, and bought him medicine for his throat and gave him $40 with instruction to stay home for two days and rest his throat. He told the doctor to supply the man with the best medicine free of charge, if he needed it.

"That's the sort of thing he was doing all the time," says Mr. Anderson.

Here is the actual wording of the strange will that Miller left. It was written and executed five years before Mr. Miller died. It's worth the trouble of reading.

The wording on this will and the following initialed pages is the will of Mr. Charles Miller, of the City of Toronto, Ontario, Canada, 1921.
This will is necessarily uncomplete and incomplete because I have no dependents or near relations and no duty rests upon me to leave any property at my death, and what I do leave is proof of my folly in gathering and retaining more than I required in my lifetime.

I give to my dear friend Mr. C. L. Laughlin, Company, Toronto, I give ten thousand dollars, as he lost approximately that sum in a business transaction with me.

I give to my dear friend Mr. H. H. A. M.
Orsen and Reverend Samuel D. Hance, each one share in the Ontario Jockey Club, providing they are alive at my death, and if they are not become enrolled as shareholders in the register of the club, and if they or any of them die, I do so the said three shares shall form part of my residuary estate.

6. To each duly ordained minister of a Christian Church (except one Presbytery, who shall be an independent minister) I give one share in the Ontario Jockey Club, and the City of Windsor and earning an annual income of $1000.00, and I give one share in there, I give one share in the Ontario Jockey Club.

7. To each Protestant minister exercising his clerical functions in the City of Toronto, and in Toronto at the time of my death, and to each Orange Lodge in Toronto, I give one share of the O'Keefe Brewery Company of Toronto, Limited.

8. All the real and residue of my property,

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS QUESTION: Miss Olanda W. writes: "Have been troubled by the appearance of ulcers in my throat. These cause me considerable discomfort, inasmuch as my position requires that I meet the public and keep talking all day. I went to a doctor, who said I had a septic sore throat and told me to gargle with warm water and that the condition would clear up of itself. Inasmuch as I am not improving, I would like to know what to do."

ANSWER: Without having an opportunity to examine you, it is difficult for me to tell you definitely whether you have the condition known as septic sore throat. As a general rule, in a case of this kind, the patient undergoes symptoms more severe than those you describe, such as chills, a high temperature, general aching, headache and nausea, in addition to the throat symptoms. Usually, the patient is advised to go to bed and to refrain from talking, when this disease is actually present. General clinical measures are to be used, and if the throat treatment given to the throat must be prescribed by the doctor in charge of the case. Some physicians advocate a solution of olive oil, and others advise a warm alkaline solution. Judging from the above, you may be suffering from a septic sore throat. Inasmuch as your position requires that you use the voice in talking, it might be advisable to stay home for a few days, as this would give the ulcers a better opportunity to heal. The best advice I may give you is to refer to your physician for a more complete physical examination. Your position requires that you have not developed a septic sore throat.

What To Do

Crisp fall days are here again, reminding us to get away our clothes and look to our woolens which inevitably need cleaning and pressing. And, unless a person is perfectly sure just how they should be cleaned at home, it is safer to send a good woolen garment to a reputable dry cleaner. If you want to try home work, you need experience. All that by shaking and brushing. Then dissolve about one tablespoonful of soap flakes in a basin of boiling water, adding enough cold water to cool the solution to lukewarm. Douse the garment up and down in the solution, allowing the soapy solution to penetrate thoroughly through the material.

After going through all this, you will appreciate that an important "don't" is not to allow woolen garments to become too dry. When they are laundered, so they can be washed without rubbing and twisting. Rinse after each washing in water of the same temperature and

The Well-Fed, Patter-on-the-Back Man Is Usually the One Who Stays by His Own Fireside And Gets the Most Fun Out of Married Life

Frank Morgan, the comedian who claims that he understands women "better than they understand themselves," said that the big laugh—aserts that he has isolated the six cardinal sins of wives which are responsible for virtually all domestic trouble, and that if women would avoid them they would put the divorce courts out of business. Here are Mr. Morgan's priceless tips for holding a husband:

First, "Never ask husband where he has been. If he has been out on legitimate business he needs no alibi. If he has been out on a party fault because you aren't woman enough to keep him home."

Second, "Never keep a husband waiting. When he starts watching the clock he stops watching you with interest."

Third, "Never make a public man. Men like to have their wives make a public man, but don't like others to see their wives do it."

Fourth, "Never baby a man when he is in the dumps, or let him do so when he is sick. When a man has the blues he likes to be left alone to enjoy them, but he loves to be pampered when he is really ill."

Fifth, "Never let a man see you at your best. Cold cream on a woman's face puts the chill on love affairs."

Sixth, "Never talk about your other loves. Your man may not care whether he is the only one in your life or not, but in any case he doesn't want to be told about the others."

No doubt these are excellent rules for holding a husband's affections, and any woman who could suppress her curiosity about where her husband had been when he rolled in with the milkman in the morning, who never kept her husband cooling his heels while she put on her hat, who never had to renew her war paint, who could look her best when she had been up all night with a sick baby and get breakfast for him and the children; who never reminded her husband of what a good match she could have made if she hadn't married him, would be like the wife of the Scriptures whose price was above rubies.

But if I were to offer to a bride six rules for keeping her husband eating out of her hand, I would say:

First, Feed the brute. Advice is old stuff, but it still works. As long as a wife makes her husband comfortable he does not perceive her faults and shortcomings. If she surrounds him with the halo of a man that rises from her pen and pen. No way has yet been devised for keeping a husband at home of evenings, that is so efficacious as filling him so full of good food that he doesn't want to move from his easy chair.

Second, Be your own press agent. Balloons your virtues and sets off your faults. When you save 10 cents on the roast, call your husband's attention to what a thrifty helpmate you are, but never mention the price of the roast but you bought. Never have another birthday after you get married. Never mention that you are growing old and fat and the chances are he will never find it out for himself. Every husband takes his wife at her own valuation.

Third, Slip on the soft soap with a liberal hand. The reason nine husbands out of ten try to get away from the critics on the earth, who make men feel like worms of the earth is that they are so chafed without ceasing. "How big and great and wonderful you are!"

Fourth, Lead your husband your ears. Laugh at his jests. Listen to his stories. Give him the glad hand, and when the Joneses drop in at an evening, or you are at the Smiths' dinner, ask him to tell that perfect cooking yarn about that time he went fishing when he was a little boy. Nobody ever heard of a man voluntarily leaving a wife who was his most appreciative audience.

Fifth, Build up the fiction that your husband is the head of the house. Ask his advice about everything you do. Consult his taste. Let him think that he has originated all the ideas that you have implanted in his mind. It will please him and be profitable for you. For after all, if he is the head of the house, you are the head of his head. He will never notice the difference.

Sixth, Don't always be Sally-on-the-spot. Don't always be underfoot. Try to keep your husband tied to your apron strings. Don't make your husband drag you around with him wherever he goes. Give him a vacation now and then. Give him a chance to miss you and realize how much he will never find it out for himself. Every husband takes his wife at her own valuation.

Seventh, Don't always be Sally-on-the-spot. Don't always be underfoot. Try to keep your husband tied to your apron strings. Don't make your husband drag you around with him wherever he goes. Give him a vacation now and then. Give him a chance to miss you and realize how much he will never find it out for himself. Every husband takes his wife at her own valuation.

Mince Meat Bread Is Nice Surprise Dessert

By MARY E. DAGUE

Mince meat bread, in this slices and a platter of Camembert and salad garnished with the last of this season's grapes and a few autumn peas makes a Sunday dinner dessert of surprising novelty.

Mince meat bread. For two loaves of bread, use one cup whole wheat flour, three-quarter cup sugar, two tablespoons tartaric acid, one-half cup cold water, one-half cup cold water and stir over heat until it begins to thicken. Then stir in the whole wheat flour, sugar, and tartaric acid. Bake in a loaf pan for 30 minutes.

Your Children -

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

LONDON. When we stop to think of the number of children in city schools, who never have seen any real country, I believe an innovation is in order that really would cost very little and give them an idea of the world outside of books and pictures. The idea is to make a simple map of the world, showing the continents, oceans, and principal cities. This can be done by using a large sheet of paper and coloring the continents in different colors. The oceans can be left white. The principal cities can be marked with dots and labeled. This map can be used as a teaching aid in schools, or it can be made at home for children's entertainment.

It was only a few years ago that I first saw cotton growing in a field. It was a new experience for me, and I was very interested in it. I had never seen cotton before, and I was very curious to see it. I went to a cotton field and saw the cotton plants growing in rows. The cotton was white and fluffy, and it was very beautiful to see. I was very happy to see it, and I was very proud of it.

Other growing mysteries. What has been a puzzle growing for me is the mystery of the cotton plant. I have never seen a cotton plant before, and I am very curious to see it. I went to a cotton field and saw the cotton plants growing in rows. The cotton was white and fluffy, and it was very beautiful to see. I was very happy to see it, and I was very proud of it.

Manners Of The Moment

By JEAN LYON

Try crawling up on your knees. Getting to the top of a double decker bus can be a shattering experience. It's terribly hard, especially if you have on high heels, to get your balance, your pockets, book and your dignity during the climb. But there are ways of conquering the situation. The simplest is to use a small, light, portable stool. This can be used to get up on the bus, and it can be used to get down. It is very convenient, and it is very easy to use. It is a very good idea to have one of these stools with you when you are out, and it is a very good idea to use it when you are out.

McPHERSON PAYS GIVEN THREE MONTHS JAIL

Campaign Manager For U. P.L. Convicted of Vagrancy Thursday

Appeal against conviction and sentence of three months on a vagrancy charge was later Friday morning by John McPherson, United People's League campaign manager, in district court.

Pleading not guilty to charges of vagrancy and distributing handbills in the city, J. A. McPherson, city relief case and campaign manager for the United People's League for the municipal elections, was sentenced to three months at hard labor in Fort Saskatchewan on the first charge and was given a fine of $10 or three days on the second count. The case was heard by Magistrate A. H. Gilman in city police court, Thursday afternoon.

REFUSED JOB

Chief action against McPherson was taken by the relief department following his refusal to accept a job at 40 cents an hour, on previous occasion. He claimed that the relief department was too high and that the charge of 50 cents a day for board was too high.

About two weeks ago, the McPherson family was cut off relief because of the husband's refusal to work and children being placed in the relief department.

McPherson himself was released by city council on December 2, after which he said that he had been given relief.

McPherson is being cared for by the city while he is in prison.

EDMONTON PAYS UNJUST SHARE RELIEF COSTS

Repeating his claim that $14 million was being distributed to the city of Edmonton, the city's share of the relief costs for the first six months of this year was $1,100,000, the largest percentage paid by any of the western cities.

For the six-month period local relief costs totaled $1,100,000, of which the city paid $1,000,000 and toward which the federal and provincial governments contributed $100,000. Edmonton's share was $14 per cent.

City's share cost for the same period was $771,750, the city's share being $21,360, or 41 per cent.

Vancouver's share of the cost city total relief cost is only 16.1 per cent, cost for the six-month period totaling $1,000,000, of which Vancouver paid $161,000, or 16.1 per cent, and Winnipeg 37.5 per cent.

These figures show that Edmonton is being required to pay the largest share of the relief costs.

Mr. Mitchell declared "Saskatoon paid only 20 per cent of the total relief cost, the city of Regina 20 per cent, and Winnipeg 37.5 per cent."

He then by his wife in Edmonton, one son, W. J. Wheeler of Calgary, one daughter, Mrs. J. Wheeler of Winnipeg, and two sons, W. J. Wheeler of Winnipeg and W. J. Wheeler of Regina.

Varsity's Engineering Ping-Pong Replaces Roughneck Games

Fraternity Goes Sissy

One reason for this rugged sport being replaced by a more refined game of ping-pong is the rough character of the game in general. The varsity engineers have gone "sissy."

The third year electrical class considers the rough character of the game of ping-pong as a more refined game of ping-pong.

Of course, since women have started to play ping-pong, perhaps this is just one of the reasons for the change.

Mr. Westcott Relaxes In Higher Mathematics—New Way to Get Satisfaction From Money

SOME guys have broken the bank at Monte Carlo—but none of them were Al Westcott, the battle-scarred grappler who featured a number of Mike Cutcher's shows here this fall. The herculean Al has broken a fair assortment of bones in his opponents, but every time he tries to clamp a headlock on a roulette bank it slips away from him like a greased pig.

Don't get the idea that Al is a gambler, for that is the last thing he could be accused of. Gamblers sometimes win, Al never does. He is an experimenter in the higher mathematical realms of the combinations and permutations offered by the game of roulette. It's a hobby with him. Bank managers relax from mental strain by playing golf, but Al relaxes his mighty muscles covering rooms of paper with complicated computations.

Johnny Demchuk brought the latest reports on Westcott's research work when he arrived Thursday from Montreal for Mike Cutcher's weekly royal in the Memorial Hall tonight. Things have not been going good for the stalwart mathematician. Somewhere in the problem of beating roulette there is an unknown factor and Al simply can't lay his hands on it. Three times recently he felt certain that he had it all doped out, slipped the rubber band off his bank roll, backed his formula to its last dime and then lost. After each tripping he spent the night overhauling his system, but somehow it always missed fire when his money was on the line.

Satisfaction at Least

"ONE night I went up to Al's room in Great Falls," Johnny explains, "and when I walk in my eyes just popped out of my head. Al has the floor covered with five and ten dollar bills and he's walking up and down on them. I never saw so much money lying around like this in my life."

"Al talks to me and sends, I know, you want to know what I'm doing," he announces. "Well I'm going to take one more try, at that roulette game and I want to get some satisfaction out of this money, just to know I lose it. The only way I can get any satisfaction out of it and still have it is to walk on it—and that's what I'm doing."

"Then Al shows me ten pages of paper that he has crammed plumb full of figures and explains that he has figured out a winning system at last. He tries to show me how it will work, but it's too deep for me and after awhile he gets a foggy look in his own eyes and winds up by saying perhaps he had better wait until after he tries it out."

Farewell to Montana

"THE next night Al comes over to my room. He wants to know if I'll drive his car to the outskirts of the city for him. He won the car in a raffle awhile ago and he hasn't learned to drive in the traffic yet. Sure, I tell him, but where are you going? 'I'm leaving this country right away,' he declared. Where are you going and what's the idea, I ask him. 'I don't know where I'm going, but I'm leaving. This country has the jinx on me,' he growls. 'My system missed again, and I'm going to try it somewhere else.'"

"I took him to the edge of the city and then he took the wheel and the last I saw of him he was heading east on the highway. Nobody has heard a thing of him since," Johnny concluded.

The California cuba plant looks like a very whole and it will grow.

Wings Score Three Goals Third Frame Beating Leafs 3-1

Markmen In Kelly Period—Ball Tatties Leaf

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—The legal-homesteaded New York Americans and Chicago Black Hawks battled to a 1-1 overtime tie at the Chicago Stadium in one of the National Hockey League season's most exciting games.

Both goals came in a fast, rough second period. Bill Kendall, on a shot from the left, scored for the Hawks in front after nine minutes of play in the stanza. Less than six minutes later Harry Oliver scored for the Leafs with Lloyd Jackson getting the goal.

The fight for control of the American being waged between the Leafs and the Hawks' scored owner, William Dwyer, failed to prevent the visitors from battling back. The Leafs scored twice in the third stanza to win 3-1.

But the Wings had the upper hand in the third when Bucko McLeod scored a goal in the 35th minute.

The Hawks scored twice in the fourth stanza. The first goal was scored by Larry Lyle, who scored from the left. The second goal was scored by Harry Oliver, who scored from the right.
